Title: Building a Project Vision

Description: A key factor in the successful redevelopment of a Brownfields project is a vision for the re-use of the property as well as an understanding of how the redevelopment fits into the long term future of the community. The project vision also impacts potential funding sources for the project. Creating the vision requires significant public participation. The experts on this panel will discuss the importance of the vision, resources for creating a vision, and some lessons learned from other West Virginia communities that are involved in the visioning process.
